

Aiming High for Health Care in 2008

Showcasing Free-Market Alternatives to Universal Health Care

Next year, 2008, will be a critical year in health care—in Minnesota and in the United States. The Minnesota legislature is now crafting a universal government-run health care plan, and the next U.S. President will strongly influence whether patients and doctors—or government—will be in control of medical decisions. Come hear national experts share their perspective and free-market strategies for health care in 2008—and beyond.

Featured Speakers

- David Gratzner, MD Canadian physician, senior fellow at the New York-based Manhattan Institute, and author of the book: THE CURE: How Capitalism Can Save American Health Care.
- James Hahn Health Economist, Congressional Research Service, The Library of Congress, and author of a Congressional report on 'pay-for-performance' initiatives (invited)
- Richard Dolinar, MD Practicing clinical endocrinologist, senior fellow at the Chicago-based Heartland Institute, and frequent speaker on the political and economic aspects of health care.
